What To Drink Now: Wine To Impress

BY HAYLEY HAMILTON COGILL | 02/26/2013 | POSTED IN WINE & SPIRITS, WINE PAIRING.

Every day should be the day to consider opening that “good bottle,” as life is short and meant to be celebrated. Here are a few suggestions that will please any palate that has a chance to sip them. A few suggestions were sent for editorial consideration.

Lasseter Family Winery, owned by Pixar founder John Lasseter and his wife Nancy who traveled throughout the French countryside via train and falling in love with the country, the food, the wine and the lifestyle coming back to California to create their Sonoma Valley winery, just released their 2009 Paysage, their flagship blend of Merlot with Cabernet Sauvignon, Malbec and Cab Franc. Earthy, dusty and balanced with gorgeous notes of dried fruit, toasted cedar, chocolate and a touch of spice. Approachable, always consistent and delicious. $40; available via their website.
